

Making Education Work

Transforming education for youth employment in the agricultural sector

Imagine...

You are an educational professional seeking to prepare your students for the labour market. You're not always confident that your current curriculum is successful in achieving this. It is challenging to integrate practising practical skills into your courses and to prioritise the most essential skills.

Do you work in the higher education sector? Do you relate to this situation? Then you are very welcome to join the blended learning programme 'Making Education Work'.

This course provides practical methods and critical thinking on how to improve education programmes through:

- New, interdisciplinary approaches and tools to design and deliver interactive learning programmes
- Ideas for grounding education in real life to offer learning that goes beyond the classroom
- Strategies for strengthening links with the labour market to produce more employable graduates.
- Building on your knowledge and experience to help you discover new opportunities and partnerships
- Skills to develop exciting course programmes that enable students to apply their knowledge and skills

Course Details:

- Blended, several month-long, part-time course
- 3-4 week blocks of online learning alternated with self-paced weeks
- 1-week face-to-face module involving field visits, networking, workshops and more!
- Scholarships are available!
- Le cours est également disponible en français!

"A cross cutting course, an eye opener which must not be missed by anyone in higher education."

Find out more and apply now!

<https://www.icra.global/courses/making-education-work/>

Making Education Work EXECUTIVE

Transforming education for youth employment in the agricultural sector

Imagine...

You are an educational professional in a leadership position seeking to prepare your students for the labour market. You're not always confident that your current curriculum is successful in achieving this. It is challenging to integrate practising practical skills into your courses and to prioritise the most essential skills.

Do you work in the higher education sector? Are you an executive, manager or leading a team? Do you relate to this situation? Then you are very welcome to join the blended learning programme 'Making Education Work'.

This course provides practical methods and critical thinking on how to improve education programmes through:

- New, interdisciplinary approaches and tools to design and deliver interactive learning programmes
- Ideas for grounding education in real life to offer learning that goes beyond the classroom
- Strategies for strengthening links with the labour market to produce more employable graduates.
- Building on your knowledge and experience to help you discover new opportunities and partnerships
- Skills to develop exciting course programmes that enable students to apply their knowledge and skills
- Lead and motivate a productive, committed team

Course Details:

- Blended, several month-long, part-time course
- 3-4 week blocks of online learning alternated with self-paced weeks
- 1-week face-to-face module involving field visits, networking, workshops and more!
- Follow 'Making Education Work' course with an additional month designed for executives
- Scholarships are available!
- Le cours est également disponible en français!

"A cross cutting course, an eye opener which must not be missed by anyone in higher education."

Find out more and apply now!

<https://www.icra.global/courses/making-education-work/>

